Therefore, it is advantageous to have a psychological plasticity that makes us prefer a strong leader in the event of war, but not in the event of peace. This overcomes the collective action problem in the theory of altruistic punishment.

A punishment system could possibly evolve by other mechanisms if the cost of
They will develop a hierarchical political structure and a very punitive system of discipline. A high level of intergroup conflict or perceived collective danger will activate a psychological desire for a strong leader in the group members, and the group will develop a hierarchical structure as a result. Jul 25, Tim rated it it was amazing Shelves: The Complete Courtlight Series: Lo and behold, Catrin's alive and well, she's just hiding. And I don't feel a desire to because Regal feels like a big ol' middle finger.
