Tanning, or, more correctly speaking tawing, by this means is open to the objection that sulfuric acid must be used very cautiously, and must be completely neutralized to prevent later damage to the skin. Pour out about half the liquor. Tanning, or, more correctly speaking tawing, by this means is open to the objection. Alum-tanned leather almost invariably dries out the first time hard and stiff. The appearance of a few light spots or a light streak on folding is a good indication of the time to start working the skin. The regulations for shipping hides by express are now very stringent. After the oil has gone in and the sides have dried a little more but are still slippery this stage weigh out about 40 pounds of fine bark and just moisten it with hot water. Between applications the skin should be kept covered with sacking or paper.
