The authors emphasize the importance of conceptual fluency and metaphorical competence, how these two aspects are decisive in learning a language, and how each has a different development in a SL or FL. It suggests new and serious issues about FL and SL teaching and learning.

This second chapter is "Foreign Language Influence on Written L1," which gives In other words, Kecskes and Papp explain how language and cognition are connected in the mind, and how the FL to L1 effect results in a unique form of multicompetence, and not in two languages that form separate systems. As their fluency in the FL increases they can integrate meaning across languages concept mediation.

Always speaking from a multilingual perspective, they highlight the important Designer Fashion Brands. So the growth of learner proficiency in the FL brings about changes in the conceptual base.
