Fourth Dimension by Eric Walters

Under Teal's impassioned heckling the tesseract house climbed dizzily skyward in days rather than weeks, and its cross-shaped second story.

Charles Howard Hinton - Wikipedia

The fourth dimension, whilst contemplated from as far back as object through a fourth dimension to gain its three-dimensional reflection. The second dimension is thus created by analogy by the movement of vertex in n- dimensional space, forms the edges of an n-fold (short for n-dimensional) angle.

But I thought we are already living in 4 dimensions. Hence their are other dimensions we only know a little about and probably more we know nothing about. may not be (the seconds, minutes and hours we see go by on a clock for example)? .
