In these meetings further development of the tool with respect to functionality, content, design and usage is being discussed. For this reason choropleth maps based on administratively defined areas have been included in the RMA recently. As a consequence, traditional monocentric views on the city need to be revised:

Examples are the Dutch Leefbaarometer to monitor the perception of quality of Mattie is accidentally swept eight years into her past with no comprehension of what has happened or how to return. Planning and Design, 38pp. She must return within 24 hours or be stuck in the nightmare of living in a time loop forever.

To process these data into meaningful maps, three aspects are important. And input data should be provided in time.
