A logical extension of this is that NCSES begins to expand its role as a clearinghouse for STEM information and coordinating data interoperability, standards for metadata descriptions e. Will global financial crises slow innovation activities or merely change the locus of activities?

The issue of timeliness is addressed by the NSF as follows: National Science Foundation

Preliminary evidence of a labor shortage--a sluggish response to increasing wages--exists in the remaining three fields, yet a closer look reveals that one of them--aerospace engineering--probably doesn't have a real, long-term shortage. Notes At head of title: Indeed, if the subject is broadened to STI, we were told that at least 5 agencies collect these data. One can collect data from sites such as Monster. They order US products for their businesses and provide expertise for local divisions of US industries. Unemployment rates for computer programmers are high, electrical and electronic engineers face a more difficult labor market than most other professionals, and talk of a shortage has diminished considerably.
