The principal aim of the course is to give students the opportunity to analyze and write about works of art. Students will learn about how religious trends are created -- and debated -- on pop culture's public stage.

We will read slave narratives, historical accounts of slavery, and philosophy. Special emphasis will be placed upon the ambiguities of historical context, including the time Shamans production, the period depicted, and changing audiences over time. We will also examine the complexities and contradictions of progressive reform movements, including efforts to improve housing, sanitation, and labor conditions.

We will primarily read philosophers whose philosophical work emphasizes the
